Woman Dies in North Phoenix Crash

(February 12, 2025) Detectives respond to a fatal car crash late Tuesday afternoon in north Phoenix that took the life of a 59-year-old woman.

At about 4:43 p.m., officers responded to a collision involving two vehicles at the intersection of 64th Street and Mayo Boulevard. Once on scene, patrol officers found two adult women suffering from injuries caused by the crash. Phoenix Fire personnel responded to the call and provided life-saving care to 59-year-old Lisa Etling. Tragically, Etling was not able to overcome her injuries and died on scene. The second woman involved received minor injuries and was taken to the hospital for treatment.

Detectives responded to the scene and took over the investigation. It was learned that Etling was driving east on Mayo Boulevard and attempted to turn left onto 64th Street, when she collided with a car driving west on Mayo Boulevard. This remains an ongoing investigation.
